San Diego based surf-punk band The Frights were one of the many artists that released music on Valentine’s Day. If you are familiar with the Frights, then you won’t be surprised that this single is titled “Valentine’s Sux”. The track features the bands cheeky lyricism and catchy surf-punk tune as an anti-Valentine’s Day anthem. Brutally honest and with a sense of playful melancholy, “Valentine’s Sux” is about spending the titular holiday without one’s significant other. With charming lyrics such as “Now I sit here stoned at Benihana’s all alone Valentine’s sucks without you” it’s hard not to crack a smile on during this song. Definitely check this track out as well as the rest of the Frights discography, great band.

Sounds Like:
SWMRS
Sounds Like:
Vundabar
Sounds Like:
Wavves
Sounds Like:
Fidlar
Sounds Like:
The Buttertones

Recommended Tracks:
Valentine’s Sux explicit

Name:
Michael Jepson
Date Reviewed:
02/21/2018

- Alt [1]
- Alt Rock/garage [2]
- Pop Punk [3]
- surf pop punk [4]
- Surf Rock [5]